ROGERS CABLE WILL CENSOR HOWARD STERN TV FOR ABUSIVE COMMENT

Why isn't Sirius Canada doing the same thing?

Toronto, Ontario, June 11, 2006: Rogers Cable announced last week that it would offer Howard TV - Howard Stern's On Demand channel for digital cable - to Canadians on a subscription basis.<sup>1</sup> In their June 6 news release, Rogers used the words "uncut" and "uncensored" to describe the material available. However, in their web site FAQ section under the question "Is Howard Stern really uncensored?", Rogers states:

... Please note that if a program fails to meet Canadian Broadcast Standards due to abusive comments or undue discrimination or for another legal reason which fails a Canadian Broadcast Standard – Rogers will be forced to remove the affected episode.<sup>2</sup>

This intention to censor Stern does not appear in the Rogers news release, although it is both important to potential subscribers and newsworthy. It is a current acknowledgement from one of Canada's largest communications and broadcast conglomerates that Stern's show features some material that contravenes Canadian broadcast standards. And that raises this important question: Why isn't Sirius Canada doing the same thing with their Howard Stern satellite radio shows? They are subject to the same legislation as Rogers Cable (the Broadcasting Act and Regulations), yet they are not taking similar steps to ensure that their Howard Stern programming conforms to Canadian law.

"The situation with Rogers and Sirius is exactly the same, Howard Stern programming being offered on a subscription basis," says Toronto anti-violence activist Valerie Smith, "but the companies are taking two very different approaches. Rogers is attempting to conform to Canadian law, while Sirius Canada is ignoring it."

Thanks, Rogers, for highlighting the situation. Let's hope that whatever regulatory and/or political pressure inspired them will also force Sirius to adopt similar measures to eliminate Stern's trademark misogyny and abusive comments directed at other vulnerable groups.

Excerpts from the Broadcasting Act and Regulations relating to abusive comment are attached. Additional information on the Sirius Canada/Howard Stern situation is available on the Free Radical web site in the Radio Section.
